

ABSTRACT OF THE INVENTION

[0053] A microchip is disclosed. One embodiment of the microchip has a flow pass for containing a reaction. A detection target region wherein light from the reaction is to be generated is located within at least a portion of the flow pass. The microchip has an optical path for detecting the light from the reaction. A length of the optical path is greater than a depth of the flow pass.